Wavelink hires new manager of technology convergence

Sydney, July 6, 2010 – Wavelink Communications, a value added distributor of business IP, wireless and communication solutions has appointed Jacek Kowalski as the manager of technology convergence.

Jacek brings Wavelink Communications more than 25 years of diverse ICT experience. As manager of technology convergence, he will work on expanding product offerings into areas such as network security, network access servers and IPTV solutions, and integrating these new products with the existing wireless solutions offered by Wavelink Communications.

Jacek will also be responsible for expanding Wavelink Communication's customer base in vertical markets such as hospitality, health care and higher education.

Jacek comes to Wavelink Communications from Docomo Intertouch where he was the director of technology convergence, South Pacific. Prior to working at Docomo, Jacek was the chief technology officer at Azure Wireless, the company taken over by Docomo Intertouch.

Jacek also worked in senior technical management roles at startup companies such as IntelliGuard IT and US-based ApplicationStation, and was a technical consultant for major corporates such as Telstra, ANZ and NAB. He was also a principal consultant for a systems integrator Praxa through which he was involved in the Emport Airborne Network Project at the US-based Primex Aerospace.

Jacek spent the first 10 years of his professional life in R&D institutions including the Polish Academy of Science, the Teletraffic Research Centre at the University of Adelaide and Telstra Research Laboratories.

Jacek holds an M.Sc. degree from the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science at the University of Warsaw and a Ph.D. degree from the School of Information Science and Technology at the Flinders University of South Australia.
